NEW YORK, July 3.—And once again a Gould sensation! So they go the rounds today the Vanderbilts are the public eye. Yesterday the Astor family linen was given a leger ai-ting and tomorrow it will be the Gould family—for a case is soon to be tried in the courts here which promises to make many people open their eyes.

To those who are unfamiliar with the story of Jay Gould's early life, the suit of a brassy old wrinkled Elitist-ette woman, Sarah Ann Angell, for a dower right in $2,000,000, comes as a surprise. It comes from the fact that a few others the story has been known for years, and the success with which it has been kept in its little family closet borders on the marvelous. The facts of the case are too old to file were the facts given an airing; although now and then through the busy life of Jay Gould there came a shade of a shadow of a glimpse of a plan. Now and then came a vague

Old man Brown fired up when he saw his daughter with her little child and without father, and he appeared to become only the more indignant as the particulars of the wedding were tearfully related to him.

He asked for the proof of the wedding, and the daughter produced the marriage certificate which Dr. N. L. Loughton, now of Tunkhaskock, Pa., had filled out and given her. In a fit of rage he tore this up and threw it in the fire.

His loss, however, under the present

Miss Florence Selma, the singer, is probably the only woman in the world who ever wore a golden hair curler. She faces together with the fact that the golden nail is no longer worn, has led to her being made defendant in a peculiar suit. Miss Selma's real name is Sears, and she is sister-in-law of the popular singer, Edna Selma. She has big, black eyes, pretty hair and a big, black eye.

"Yes," said she, when I saw her at the Hotel Martin. "I've got to defend a lawsuit for $84, and it's all on account of a well-to-do man. He's all about my hair curler. He says I'm a thief for riding my bicycle up town, and in trying to get out of the way of a team I fell and hurt my toe. The nail began to grow in. That is not pleasant, neither."

"There was nothing remarkable in this, as it was an ant country where they literally overran everything; but these ants, as though recognizing the tropical heat, each bore a highly-colored umbrella in such a position that it was more or less a shield and protection. The umbrella was a bit of a leaf that had been carefully bitten out of shape, and each was an umbrella of a fancy only, hundreds being carried to line a subterranean nest deep in the heart of the jungle."

"One of these nests," continued the naturalist, "I found by following up the

Mrs. Arcell's case is full of complications and it only remains to be seen whether she can actually bring on the witness stand the preacher, who, it is alleged, married her to Jason Gould, a witness to the marriage, the alleged daughter of Jay Gould and the men now old and gray, who were witnesses of the courtship of the two.

Then, too, if she is the only legal wife of the late Jay Gould, was she guilty of bigamy when she married John Angel of House's Point, N. Y., and will her success in this case be

HOLLOW BRICKS.

Hollow bricks, it is said, are coming into more general use in eastern cities, and quite a number of large buildings have been built with them. They crush at 30,000 pounds, or about the pressure which the best solid brick will stand. They are made 8 by 8 by 12, with walls one inch thick. It is claimed that they cost one-third less than the regular brick making waste, and are not injured by moisture and frost, being warm in winter and cool in summer. They require a peculiar clay in their manufacture, one that will not shrink when dried or burned. The bricks are set in mortar, thus making a wall from top to bottom.—National Builder.

"One of the most interesting sights have witnessed," remarked a naturalist to a group of listeners, "was an arm of ants marching through a South American jungle. I had been out a day hunting butterflies with a native guide, and almost overcome by the intense heat, had stretched myself out beneath a great mass of vines which hung from a large tree, when I noticed a column of ants moving along at my feet.
